

Holy Ka-Kow!

Megan (not her real name!) Info coming soon.

Riff (not his real name!) was born with a unique genetic condition (called "Riff's syndrome") that distorts the bones in his inner ear, making him exceptionally sensitive to sonic changes, even those normally out of the hearing range of average people. Unfortunately, this condition leaves him extremely susceptible to inner ear infections and frequent loss of balance. His brief stint as a brilliant luthier (before being fired for unsubstantiated affair with Les Paul's daughter, Colleen) left him enough moiney to have gyroscopes surgically implanted in both knees to prevent future falls.

J.D. (not his real name) is a multi-millionare who currently holds the patents to over 4000 devices, ranging from car modifications, to personal body armor designs, even including chemical compositions designed to attract and repel specific species of fish. Despite his success in these endeavors, he remains possibly the world's least successful businessman, claiming bankrupcy no less than 128 times. His current fortune is mostly due to a lucrative agreement after internal emails revealed he was the main inspiration for Batman.

Hojo (absolutely his real name.) grew up in a medium sized town in a middle class family in the middle of the midwest. He got average grades and went on to an average college where he changed his major thirty-eight times, before running out of time and having to settle on dance therapy. he graduated middle of his class and is in middle management at a company that creates averaging software.
